Smith Speaks On Current Problems, Points Of View

The Rev. John Lee Smith, Director of Studies, United Religious Work, Cornell University, was featured speaker for the Bonhoeffer Festival at Wartburg College Feb. 23 - 25.

His address to the convocation audience, entitled "Celebrating the Life of the World," was given in a series of three speeches.

In his first speech, Rev. Smith attempted to define the current problems of religious points of view today. He surmised that the main problem was a lack of understanding of the purpose for a religious faith.

Points Out Complacencies

In pointing out the complacencies of today's religions, he called for a radical change.

The following day, he continued the series by outlining the prognosis of religious faith if it proceeds at the current level.

A crisis of religious faith, an end of religious belief and an erosion of authority were cited as the factors likely to lead to a malignant decay of religious faith.

The Rev. Mr. Smith claimed that these problems, together with an evasion of literal Biblical translation, are nothing but "a despriptive kind of atheism."

There's Loss Of Inwardnss.

"Do people really feel guilty anymore?" he questioned. He maintained that a "loss of inwardness" was responsible for the apathetic state of religious faith today.

". . . a new community is beginning to emerge. . . a community of hope which believes, proclaims and acts in the confidence that the future is open to radical possibilities," he revealed.

In his concluding speech, he attempted to outline the practical applications for the new religious spirit of the "community of hope."

He suggested that recognition of the problems of complacency should be accompanied by more than "a yawn and maybe a giggle."

Embrace Secular World

He called on Wartburg students to embrace the secular world with a new morality. "Whenever your morals inhibit your hope and its possibilities, they're un-Christian," he warned.

In summary Smith challenged, "You want to be a part of this community of hope? All right, then, risk something!"

Senior Pete Hanson, junior Ed Roach and several other students visited with the Rev. John Lee Smith after one of his convo lectures during the Bonhoeffer festival.

Committee Hears Appeals From Probation Students

"Many students aren't aware of it, but there is an Academic Problems Committee to help them when they are in academic trouble," said Earnest F. Oppermann, dean of students.

The all - faculty committee, headed by Prof. C. Robert Larson, Music Department, may be appealed to if a student is forced to leave school for academic reasons.

If the committee decides to reinstate the student, he is given an appeal semester.

Student Must Wait

The student who is not reinstated for the appeal semester may wait one semester and then return to college.

The Academic Problems Committee may also be appealed to if all the graduation requirements cannot be met. The committee has power to walve requirements if it so decides.

This semester there are 173 students on academic probation, according to Oppermann.

Requirements Given

To stay off the academic probation list, a freshman must earn eight hours of C and 12 hours of passing. Sophomores must earn a 1.5 average for the first semester and a 1.75 average the second semester. Juniors and seniors must maintain a 2.0 average.

Opperman explained that a student on academic probation is first notified, then a letter is sent to his parents, with both the student's and Oppermann's signature. This procedure is followed regardless of age, unless the student is married.

The parents, in turn, must reply to Oppermann. In this manner he is assured that the parents are aware of the situation.

Den Redecoration Is Being Planned

Plans for redecoration of the Den are progressing rapidly. Materials are being studied, blueprints of proposed changes are being drawn up and bids are being consldered, according to Ron Nelson, student body vice president.

Several alternative decoration plans are being diagrammed. The final plan will be chosen in the near future.

No matter what plan is chosen the wall covering will be changed, new drapes will be hung and the floor covering will be altered.

Suggestions submitted to members of the student body are being used extensively in the planning.

Various plans which might be used range from simple basic changes to make the Den more attractive to a major change in the food service offered in the Den.

When the final plan for redecoration is approved by the Den Redecoration Committee, full information on the details of the plan and the initial date of redecoration will be presented to the student body.

Over $2,500 has been donated to the project so far. The April collection of pledges should put the fund over the $3,000 mark.

Members of the Den Redecoration Committee are Lewis Levick, union director; Paul McClain, food service director; Raymond Norheim, History Department; Marcus Quade, student body project chairman; freshman Sandra Meyer; and Ronald Nelson, student body vice president.

Seven Companies To Interview Students For Business Employment

Seven companies will be on campus this week interviewing persons interested in business employment.

T. S. Harvey will be interviewing for State Farm Insurance Companies on March 1 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the Faculty Lounge of the Library. Harvey is interested in business majors, mathematicians and accountants, not sales.

Juniors are welcome to sign up for the interviews.

The U. S. Department of Commerce will have a representative in the conference room of the Student Union on March 2 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

AETNA To Interview

Also on March 2, AETNA Casualty and Surety Company will be interviewing from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the Faculty Lounge of the Library.

On Thursday, March 3, D. R. Flebbe from the Postal Finance Company will interview in the Faculty Lounge of the library from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Northern Natural Gas Company is interested in business administration and liberal arts students. Roger Helgoe will interview for them on March 3 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the conference room of the Student Union.

Howard Rebholz of the Rath Packing Company will interview students on March 4 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the Faculty Lounge of the library.

Two Programs Involved

This year the Rath Company is interested in employing men for both the marketing development program and the production management program.

CRUM and FORESTER GROUP will also be interviewing on Friday. Paul Biestek will be in the conference room of the Student Memorial Union from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

For further information on any of these interviews see Melvin Kramer of the Business Department.

Anyone wishing to sign up for an interview with any of these companies may sign up on the bulletin board on the first floor of Old Main, according to Kramer.

Enrollment Reaches 1,300

Second semester enrollment at Wartburg College totals 1,300 students, according to figures from the registrar's office.

This is an increase of 79 over last spring when 1,221 were registered. This fall's enrollment was 1,326.

Full-time students number 1,199 and part-time, 101. Among the full-time students are 425 freshmen, 282 sophomores, 285 juniors and 207 seniors.

Student Recitals To Be Presented

Senior recitals by La Nell Bailey and Carol Schulte are scheduled for Sunday evening. The performances will be given in the Chapel-auditorium at 7 p.m.

Miss Bailey, a soprano, will present works by such composers as Strauss, Handell, Haydn, Rogers and Dougherty. A student of C. L. Larson, Music Department, she will be accompanied by Jacquelyn Bossom.

Piano solos composed by Scarlatti, Beethoven, Brahms, Bartok, MacDowell and Kabelevsky will be featured in Miss Schulte's portion of the program. She is a student of Dr. Jean Abramson, Music Department.

Scholarship Exam Date Is March 5

Competition for Wartburg's largest scholarship will be held March 5. Here to take tests for the Regents Scholarship program will be 44 seniors from seven states and Mexico.

Top prize is the $2,000 Regents Scholarship. A number of Regents Merit Scholarships, worth $1,000 each, and Regents Honor Scholarships, worth $850 each, will also be awarded on the basis of the March 5 tests.

All the candidates for the scholarships were selected from applications received by the Admissions Department. All applicants are in the upper five per cent of their graduating class or have recorded exceptional ACT or College Board test scores.

Results of the testing program will be announced in mid-March, according to Victor Pinke, admissions director.

A parents' orientation and campus tour and breakfast for the students will be included on this year's program.

Convo Features Play, Prior

A one-act play and the prior of Taizé will be featured in this week's convocation programs.

"Happy Journey to Trenton and Camden," a one act play by Thornton Wilder will be presented in convo on March 1.

The play's cast includes freshmen Ralph Lohse, Mary Peters and Pam Jones. Also in the cast are sophomore Mary Schlange and senior Ken Swensen. Al Lyndrup, junior, is directing the play.

On March 3 Roger Schutz - Marsauche, prior of Taizé, will be here. Taizé is a monastical type of community on the southern edge of Burgundy in the area of Cluny, the center of Medieval monasticiam.

Debate Team Enters Meet At Eau Claire

Approximately 60 schools participated in the 22nd annual Eau Claire Speech Meet last weekend. Wartburg was represented by freshmen Carol Havemann and Ken Smith and sophomores Ron McCollister and Gary Monserud.

Wartburg's highest award was received by Ken Smith, who placed second in the oratory contest. Carol Havemann received an over-all rating of excellent in her narrative reading.

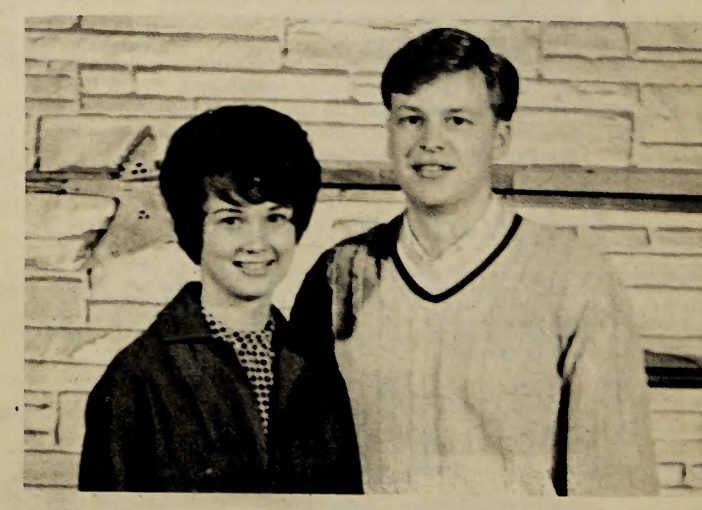
Macalester College from Minnesota won the novice division of the debate, and South Dakota State won the varsity. Eau Claire won the sweepstakes trophy, which was awarded for the over-all rating in the tournament.

Wartburg's next debate will be at the Iowa Intercollegiate Forensics Association Tournament at Simpson College in Indianola, on March 10, 11 and 12.

'Gallup' Poll Is Instituted

Gallup polls, gathering opinions on a variety of topics, have been used nationally for several years. A type of Gallup Poll is being set up on campus. Tentatively, the first of these will appear next week, according to sophomore John Bitner, chairman of the project.

The poll is an offshoot of Student Senate. It is part of the Senate's overall goal to stimulate student interest in current events, controversial or otherwise, according to Study Body President Bill Hamm.



Snow Royalty Named

Senior Ken Swensen and junior Rhoda Reinking were crowned king and queen of Snow Weekend at coronation ceremonies last night.

Make It All Or Nothing

Let's consider the student who jumps into every activity he can find. He thinks it will really look good when the Fortress comes out and he has more things listed under his name than any other student.

The fact of the matter is that it does look pretty impressive, but in most cases it really isn't. If we think about it, we'll realize that nobody can belong to 10 different organizations and expect to really get anything out of them or put anything substantial into them.

Impression Is Doubtful

These are usually the same people who don't make it to half of the meetings, or don't help on the float or don't get their Trumpet stories in on time. They aren't really impressing anyone but themselves and even that might be doubtful.

They would be far better off if they would hold the activities to a minimum and be beneficial participants in those organizations which they choose.

This idea of putting your all into one thing has far-reaching implications. Take for example the student teacher who teaches only half days. He doesn't really find out what teaching is all about. He misses the joy of getting up with the sun to go and face the half asleep students. He misses the extra duties and the teachers' gossip sessions. All of this is a real part of teaching.

Actually, it isn't the student teacher's fault. He may have to take courses while he is teaching; thus he can only teach half days. However, if somewhere along the line someone required full day student teaching, he would naturally go along with it even if it meant having to attend an extra summer session.

It would seem logical that student teaching is for the purpose of giving education students a true picture of what teaching is. Obviously, half a picture is not a true picture. We hope that someone will see the light and that full-day student teaching will become a requirement in the education student's curriculum.

Other Areas Considered

Other areas deserve consideration, too. We are all students; we should give this the major share of our attention. During our summer jobs and in our future careers, we should do a complete job. Half a job means only half the feeling of satisfaction. Both you and the person you're working for will get much more out of a well-done job.

Nobody likes a feeble attempt, so make it all or nothing.

The Somewhat Straight Stuff

One Goes A-Excerpting

By L. ALBERT SAGERT

Despite what some say, there is a certain worth in what Bonhoeffer said in his "Ethics." For instance, he wrote that love is not love which separates itself from life in the world. Perhaps this is not profound--but it has significance for all of us when we understand it the way Bonhoeffer did.

The truest love is one which places us directly in the world rather than in our own, or another person's, emotional sphere. It is not some psychological trick or game with which we entertain ourselves or make our existence more easily tolerable.

* * * * *

It is worthy to note that no man can ever know that what he knows is actually what exists, whether he be psychic, scientist, theologian, child or common man. Men can, at best, merely approximate knowledge of their surroundings due to their own native deficiencies. Man is not an exact or even an efficient animal but merely the one which predominates due to his possession of a mind.

* * * * *

To ask if the Germans knew what was going on in the concentration camps is nearly meaningless, particularly if one does not know the German people. One can assume that some knew all, some knew nothing and some were aware of something but did not question further out of apathy, fear or unconcern. The range in actuality covers all possibilities and lies in no absolute extreme.

* * * * *

The universe is composed of bits and massings of bits: philosophies, matter, ideas, populations. The order of the universe is not undisturbable unity but rather co-ordinated difference. This world is not basically good, bad or indifferent but rather simply is, independent of what we think or wish it to be.

* * * * *

The horror of six million people losing their lives in a single decade is not that lifeless, open-eyed, emaciated bodies were buried with bulldozers but that each one of the six million was as much an individual person as you or I.

* * * * *

The problem of people's egos is perhaps the most important problem in the world. For the ego largely determines how, where, when and if a person deals with everything around him. If the ego is not recognized and controlled, the individual is not prepared to meet the world in a coherent fashion, and that is where problems arise.

* * * * *

In a way, to ask why one exists is pointless. The fact is that one DOES exist and how or why he does will never be revealed to him in any absolute sense, although he searches all his life. When he asks such a question, he should not expect an answer.

The Poison Pen

Teaching Trials Continue

By LINDA STULL

This week's exciting episode in the Trials of Teaching, a modern day sequel to the Perils of Pauline with the perils still intact, but with Pauline noticeably absent, will begin, uniquely enough, where the last session left off. We had just left our heroine marked for life as an imbecile after correcting a theme the wrong way.

But an imbecile sitting in the back of the room never knew she had it so good until she had to stagger to the front and face her class. Alas, our heroine (who obtained this enviable title after she resorted to a product of the same name for stamina) stood there, her knees shaking and her teeth chattering. And her students sat there with their fangs showing and their eyes registering looks of disbelief that anyone who had gone through four years at a place so notable as Wartburg could be so dumb.

Stull

She mentioned the joys of the romantic period in American literature and one of the better known members of the group, whose duty it was to embarrass this lowly student teacher, said, "Hmmm, you like that kind of stuff, huh?" thus indicating that lust and love were her favorite extracurricular pastimes--to which the rest of the class released an audible sound of envy, probably wishing that they, too, could live the exciting life that our heroine pursues. Not wishing to curb this natural and normal interest in the baser pleasures of life, she immediately gave them tickets to the freshman English movie.

--0--

Later on in the week, when a poet mentioned the beauty of his sweetheart and compared it to a ship on a perfumed sea, the group, sadists that they are, decided that, instead, it was this dope's way of calling his honey an old barge. And our heroine once more felt a tinge of martyrdom, probably evoked in part through the message of the Bonhoeffer Festival.

Since I have heard complaints that the subject matter is getting a bit redundant in this column, I faithfully promise to add no more episodes to this saga of secondary education. Let it be said that the trials of our heroine will soon end and that it is hoped that the ensuing scar will not keep her from living happily ever after.

In the meantime, let us enjoy another snowless weekend and remember with wry smiles the words of the Snow Weekend chairman, which were printed in this tabloid epic a few weeks ago, "With weather like this," quoth he, "snow will be the least of our worries."

Oh well, what's snow? It is reputed that the Alpine rescuer carries a full tank regardless of the weather!

KWAR To Return To Air Tonight

KWAR-FM has been off the air since last Tuesday due to technical difficulties with the transmitter and antenna.

The catastrophe may be a benefit -- KWAR has been using the same equipment for 15 years and probably needs a change.

According to Keith Henricks, station manager, KWAR should be back on the air at game time tonight.

Knights Split 2 On Road; Face Rival Luther Tonight

By ED ROACH

Wartburg split a two-game road trip last Friday to maintain the third spot in the Iowa Conference race. The Knights dropped an 86-78 decision to William Penn Friday night and then rebounded Saturday to pin a 75-58 loss on fifth-place Central.

William Penn trailed the Knights during most of the first half until a 35-foot jump shot at the half-time buzzer propelled the Statesmen into a 43-42 lead at the half.

The Knights only threatened once in the second half.

"We were ahead with about three minutes left in the game, but an easy lay-up got caught in the bracket," coach Buzz Levick explained. "If the ball would have fallen we would have gone into a delay game and probably won."

Penn Took Final Lead

As it was, Penn took the rebound and scored. After the Knights missed their next opportunity, the Statesmen collected a three-point play to take the final lead.

Buzz said, "We played a consistent game. Our inability to control the boards was our only weak point, but that was caused by lack of size, not lack of effort."

Bowman Sets Record

Denny Bowman set a new career record of 24 points, topping both teams in the offensive column for the night. "He also played a fine defensive game both nights," Levick said.

All five Knight starters hit the double figure mark as Wartburg compiled a hot 51 shooting percentage for the evening.

Moving to Pella, the Knights were able to limit the Flying Dutchmen of Central to only 25 points in the second half to preserve their three-point half-time lead.

"Our defense won the ball game for us," Levick said.

Wartburg was able to dominate the boards against the Dutch. Levick mentioned that in the latter stages of the game, forwards Dave Lange and John Hearn and center Lowell Syverson completely controlled both the offensive and defensive rebounds.

Denny Bowman shared the scoring honors in the game with Central's Steve Stone with 19 tallies apiece.

Tonight Wartburg faces its arch-opponent, Luther, in the Snow Weekend tilt. The Norsemen are in firm control of second place with a 10-3 record.

Fast-Break Must Be Stopped

"We will have to stop their fast-break," Buzz said. "If we can't, we'll have to shoot really well."

"I hope we have a lot of snow and a strong wind, but not enough to postpone the game. The kids are really looking forward to playing in this one," Levick jested.

Grapplers Devastate UIU; Take Fourth At Decorah

Knight grapplers faced a full slate in the past week emerging with a best-ever fourth place finish in the Lutheran Tournament and splitting the dual meet schedule with a loss to Luther and an impressive win over Upper Iowa.

Luther dropped the Knights' dual meet record to 5-5 as they edged the Wartburg grapplers in a Tuesday night confrontation. Luther won by the narrow margin of 15-12.

Knight Winners Told

The meet was in a 13-13 deadlock as the heavyweights did battle to decide the issue. Luther's Don Miller took charge handing Dean Knight the meet-deciding match 3-1.

Coach Norm Johansen said of the meet, "We might have been able to win if we would have had Long. This is no reflection on Wold, he was just too small."

Knights Devastate UIU

The Knights massacred the Upper Iowa Peacocks Thursday night 34-3 to the delight of Wartburg wrestling fans.

Before the contest Jo said, "Upper Iowa is a good team. They beat us last year and a couple good wrestlers became eligible at the semester."

Johansen's fears were unfounded as the Knights demolished the Peacocks with four falls and a default.

Wartburg is now looking forward to the conference meet and the chance to dethrone Luther. "We think we've got a good chance of taking Luther this year. We could be hurt by bad pairings. This is the bad thing about only having five wrestling teams in the conference."

Chicago Tour Is Successful; 40 See City's Culture, Sites

By PAT RUNDHAUG

"It was a riot!" "I've never had so much fun learning. If this is what 4-4-1 means I'm all for it." This is just a part of what it meant to some of the 40 students who went on the Chicago Cultural Tour last weekend.

"It's almost impossible to say what I liked most," commented freshman Kathy Fredrick. "Probably the play and the symphony."

The play Kathy is referring to was "Barefoot In the Park," a comedy starring Myrna Loy. The symphony is the Chicago Symphony performing at Orchestra Hall with Gina Bachauer as the piano soloist.

Institute Is Liked

Others liked the Art Institute, which has one of the finest collections of art in the United States. Some liked Robie House, a home designed by Frank Lloyd Wright in 1908.

The home was in terrible shape, but the lines and focal points of Wright's architecture showed through.

Although no one in the group was particularly interested in seeing the Oriental Art Institute, many left the Institute liking it the best of all the weekend's events.

The reason for this was the guide, who made the museum and its history come alive for every member of the group. She was from Cairo, Egypt, and was studying for her Ph.D. at the University of Chicago.

See Chicago By Night

Points of interest to other members of the tour were the Museum of Science and Industry, the view of Chicago at night from the top of the Prudential Building and the Rockefeller Memorial Chapel.

If you should ask sophomore Jolene Willer what she liked best she would say, "Old Town. I've just got to go back!"

The free time Saturday afternoon gave the group an opportunity to see and go where they wished.

Some students went to Old Town, some to the auto show at McCormick Place, some shopping, some met old friends and still others rummaged through book stores and just plain looked around.

Tour Was Success

All in all the tour was a huge success. "We had fun, we learned a lot and we appreciated it because we don't have it here," commented one student.

Every member of the tour group extends his thanks to the student committee working with Jane Frahm, and also the Alumni Association for making this tour possible and for planning it so well.

The trite saying "It's a great place to visit, but I wouldn't want to live there" receives responses such as "True, but I'd sure like to stay a few weeks!"

Several Wartburg students spent an afternoon of the Chicago Cultural Tour at the auto show at McCormick Place.

'Taming Of Shrew' Cast Announced

Norma Gray, senior, and Al Lyndrup, junior, will play the lead roles of Kate and Petruchio in the Wartburg Theatre's coming production of Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew," March 24, 25 and 26, according to director John Gill, Speech Department.

Assistant directors for the play will be junior Ruth Pirsig and sophomore Mary Schlange.

Much of the actual production aspects is being handled by the play production classes, according to Gill. Special emphasis will be placed on an original set design and on costumes.
